GRADE SCHOOL BOND ELECTION TO BE HELD!

BOARD ASKING MORE THAN $1,200,000 FOR CITY'S SYSTEM

Program Of Improvements Practically Same One As Defeated At Polls

A special election on the proposed issuance of about $1,200,000 in bonds for elementary school purposes will be called by the Glendale Board of Education before the end of the present school year, probably in the latter part of June.

Tentative plans for proposed sites and buildings will be made at a meeting called for tomorrow night at 8 o'clock when a committee of fifteen, appointed today by the Board of Education, will meet with the members of the board.

Adopt Resolution General support was promised when the proposed issue is voted upon again, however, a resolution adopted at last night's meeting follows:

"Whereas, there is a need for more adequate accommodations for elementary schools in the city of Glendale, the citizens of Glendale hereby petition and authorize the Glendale Board of Education to call a bond election to raise the required amount of approximately $1,200,000; such election to be held before the close of the present school year.

"Prior to such election the board shall appoint a committee of fifteen, taking into consideration the location of residence of members. The committee shall check plans submitted by the Board of Education and report back their findings to the board within ten days."

Give Endorsement The resolution received the endorsement of a number of representatives of various service clubs, associations and other organizations who were present. Representatives of a number of organizations were not present, although, explained Superintendent White, invitations were extended to every organization in the city. Appraisals of proposed sites will be made for the Board of Education, free of charge, by the Realty board.

High School's Bond Election Being Delayed

The Board of Trustees of the Glendale Union High school district will not launch a bond issue campaign to raise approximately $1,200,000 until after the election to be held by the Glendale Board of Education for $1,200,000 bond issue for elementary and intermediate schools, it was announced today.

Discussion of a proposed bond issue, however, that is held necessary to relieve crowded conditions in the high schools of the city and to meet the need of higher education will be held by the trustees at a meeting to be held shortly after reorganization of the board next Saturday noon.

The high school trustees asked in a former bond election the funds for purchase of a site for and the construction of a senior high school plant; purchase of a high school site in the Sunland-Tujunga section and purchase of a high school site in the La Crescenta-Montrose section.

Southbound Train Into San Diego Leaves Track In Sorrento Canyon

SAN DIEGO, April 29.—One man is dead, three perhaps fatally injured and a score were suffering from cuts and bruises today as a result of the wreck of a southbound Santa Fe passenger train a few miles north of San Diego.

A company of thirty-five motion picture players, headed by Louise Fazenda, en route to San Diego for the filming of a picture, was shaken up, but being in the rear-most car escaped injury.

The train was making fifty-five miles an hour when the locomotive jumped the tracks in Sorrento canyon and plunged into an embankment, the momentum of the trailing cars jamming them up on and over the engine. The baggage and express cars were rent into kindling, but the passenger coaches careened past the debris along the opposite side of the tracks and were not smashed. Every window in the train was broken.

Relief Train Rushed Attending physicians at the Seraphs Memorial hospital at La Jolla where Merriam Scott, express messenger of Los Angeles, and A. N. Weir, the fireman, of Los Angeles, were taken for treatment, said they had not regained consciousness at 8 o'clock this morning.

BUDGET STIRS ENGLAND TO QUESTIONS

First Report Of Churchill Is Accepted Dubiously By British Subjects

By DAVID M. CHURCH For International News Service LONDON, April 29.—After an over-night study of Winston Churchill's first budget, Great Britain seemed dubious whether to accept it with jeers or cheers. It was apparently agreed that the budget contains nothing to encourage the belief that England will have an immediate trade revival. On the other hand, Lord Beaverbrook's Express said the return to the gold standard means an immediate trade boom for the United States, inasmuch as American manufacturers no longer have to compete with the cheap pound sterling in foreign markets.

Insurance Schemes Churchill's proposal for an elaborate insurance scheme also raises the debts of the manufacturers, who claim it means that industrialists and workers will have to make additional contributions in order to support this scheme. They said this additional charge offsets any value that might be gained by reduction of the income tax.

British producers applauded the return of the McKenna duties, but motor manufacturers say that Americans have discounted the prohibitive import duty on foreign cars by expanding greatly their present stocks.

It was pointed out today that the income tax reductions grant a greater benefit to bachelors than to married men.

Women Aroused Women were aroused today to find the new duties on silk already were reflected in increased prices for silk stockings.

The Beaverbrook press jeered the tariff on hops, referring tauntingly to the "brewers' mile." The Chronicle said the budget was a sop to the pre-electionists. The Conservative press was loud in its applause of the first budget submitted by the Conservative Baldwin government and the opposition press was not bitterly critical, but dubious. Laborites and Liberals both are sure to attack the budget proposal.

MIMIC BATTLE NEAR HAWAII SUMMED UP

Umpires To Hold Critique Beginning May 1 To Decide Victory

By WILLIAM G. CAYCE For International News Service HONOLULU, April 29.—A grand critique of the great Hawaiian army-navy maneuvers will be held here starting May 1 and continuing for five days, it was announced today.

The umpires are engaged receiving reports of the mimic battle and preparing for the work of the critique.

In the meantime discussion of the fight was at its height, with interest in airplane activity the outstanding feature.

Planes Effective That planes proved the most effective weapons for both the attacking "blue" fleet and the defending "black" was the opinion of many. The value of airplanes in scouting, reconnaissance, protecting landings and in bombing was demonstrated by both sides, it was declared.

The entire maneuvers were marked by many air skirmishes, but official results, except in a few instances, have not yet been received by the chief umpires.

The critique was expected to bring out the result of the air attack by the "black" forces defending Oahu island, which was attacked by the invading "blue" fleet. Results of the air attack were claimed to have been extremely damaging and caused great loss of life.

BACK TO GOLD BASIS BIG BOOST TO INDUSTRY

U. S. Administration Holds Great Britain's Decision Important To World

By GEORGE R. HOLMES For International News Service WASHINGTON, April 29.—No single development abroad in months has aroused so much enthusiasm in Washington as Great Britain's decision to return to the gold standard.

Without exception, administration officials hailed it today as a great forward step toward stabilization of the world, commercially and financially.

The treasury declared the decision to be the most significant and important reconstruction step since the adoption of the Dawes plan.

The department of commerce heralded it as an enormous stimulant to American trade abroad and experts predicted that foreign commerce, already at a satisfactory stage, will boom to still higher figures.

Even the state department, whose problems are more political than commercial, was gratified because, with the United States and Great Britain once more on a financial parity, it was felt that it cannot fail to have a beneficial effect in diplomatic matters.

American firms fighting for world trade no longer will have to compete against low-priced and fluctuating British pounds in the world's trading centers, it was pointed out. And, with Britain's example flaunting itself before the rest of the world, the confident expectation prevails in Washington that other countries will follow in her footsteps as soon as possible.

Holland has already signified her intention of following the British example. The chief obstacle that American business has had to overcome since the war has been the demoralization of foreign exchange. Violent fluctuations, yielding to every political wind blowing in Europe, has made the export and import business a hazardous and uncertain procedure—"unsettled," the experts called it.

Shows Confidence Stability will replace this uncertainty now wherever the British pound sterling and the American dollar compete, particularly in the Far East and in South America, where the most sanguinary business conflicts are being staged.

The confidence that the American government feels in British financial stability is exemplified in the $300,000,000 credit established in New York for the British government. Of this huge amount, the greatest peace-time credit in the world's history, a third will be handled by the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., fiscal agents for the empire during the war, and two-thirds by the Federal Reserve bank.

Establishment of this credit, incidentally, is regarded as a favorable augmentary for future business.

SLAYER OF AGED WIDOW HUNTED BY L. A. POLICE

LOS ANGELES, April 29.—Police here today were searching for the slayer of Mrs. W. H. Babcock, 68, wealthy widow, whose dead body was found at her home late yesterday afternoon. Elopement Not Relished By Young Wife

COLUSA, Cal., April 29.—Asserting her love for young Henry Kaucher, for whom she deserted her aged husband, Isaac Kaucher, when the younger man developed his father's traits, Mrs. Gladys Kaucher, 23, declared today she was "through" with both.

Mrs. Kaucher said she would disregard pleas of young Kaucher that she marry him after obtaining a divorce from his father.

"Father and son are too much alike," said the young woman, who ran away from her home near here to Oakland with the youth several weeks ago. At the time Mrs. Kaucher said she eloped with Kaucher because his father, whom she married last August, had abused her baby.

LUTHER PEACE TALK CALMS OUTSIDERS

German Chancellor Promises Program Of Peace And Dawes Fulfillment

LONDON, April 29.—Diplomatic circles here today understood that Hindenburg and Chancellor Luther have agreed that as soon as Hindenburg takes office Germany will issue a statement re-affirming its support of the Dawes plan. The offer for a joint security pact, enlisting France, England and Germany, also will be renewed, it was understood.

By S. D. WEYER For International News Service. BELLIN, April 29.—Chancellor Luther, head of the cabinet which will continue in office after Hindenburg becomes president, did his part to allay suspicion abroad in outlining a program of peace and reconstruction in an address today. Speaking to the Association of Commerce and Industry, he said Germany would continue to fulfill the provisions of the Dawes plan.

He urged evacuation of the Ruhr and invited a discussion of a security pact in which Germany would participate. Germany has calmed down from the first excitement following the election of Hindenburg to the presidency and today a quiet confidence was taking the place of the frenzy of early in the week.

Politicians Warned Professional politicians, especially party leaders, still dizzy from the shock, feel the ground slipping under their feet. The election has already shown that the leaders no longer have a hold on members of the masses. They are throwing off party yokes and seem to feel an instinctive trust that the "old man"—the president-elect—will take care of them.

This gift of inspiring faith, which was the field marshal's greatest asset in war, again is manifesting itself and, inasmuch as it threatens their grip on national affairs, is giving much worry to politicians.

Put Signatures to Document As Another Row Flares Up Among Members

BULLETIN WASHINGTON, April 29.—President Coolidge was told today by R. Stanley Dollar, vice-president of the Dollar steamship lines, that an American merchant marine, "of which the country can be proud" will be maintained in the Pacific by his organization as a result of recent purchases of shipping board vessels.

By FRED J. WALKER For International News Service. WASHINGTON, April 29.—In a formal ending of one phase of the shipping board controversy over sales policy, R. Stanley Dollar today signed the contract governing the purchase of five president type liners now in the San Francisco-Asiatic trade.

The board had earlier in the day approved the contract which gives the Dollar interests legal title to the government's crack passenger ships. Chairman O'Connor of New York and Dollar then signed it.

Directly after the transaction was completed, the board's internal row flared up anew when a movement was launched by minority commissioners to cancel Dollar's operating contract on five board liners in the Seattle-Oriental run.

Charge Monopoly Just when official Washington regarded the turbulent shipping controversy as settled by court decision, upholding sale of the five ships to the Dollar interests, a resumption of hostilities threatened from a new quarter.

It came from board members who want the government to take back the Seattle liners row under lease to Dollar, through fear of increased losses due to control of the combined fleets of one corporation.

Board Goes Ahead The board meanwhile prepared to complete the sale to Dollar of the five San Francisco liners now leased to the Pacific Mail Steamship Co.

ONE DAY LOST IN TRAVEL BY SHIP

Glendale Globe-Trotter Is Positive Something Is Wrong on Ocean

This is the second of a series of travelogue articles written for The Glendale Evening News by Lon J. Haddock, prominent writer and publisher of Glendale, who is now making a trip around the world. Others will follow shortly.

By LON J. HADDOCK
Written for The Evening News
On board S. S. President Monroe, somewhere at sea—I have lived the fastest day of my life! I went to bed last night it being Wednesday, March 25, to wake this morning only to be apprised of the fact that it is "Friday, March 27."

I'm too dazed yet to figure out exactly how it happened. The Volstead law obtains on this ship, even if my life habits were not sufficient assurance of my sobriety; and I remember distinctly looking at the log of this ship just before I went to bed last night, and noting particularly that it read "Wednesday, March 25."

However, when a man has been married ninety-odd years (see that long, anyway) he learns to just take a great many things for granted, therefore, I submissively accept the fact which I know isn't true—that today is Friday, March 27.

Run Over Meridian
It all happens on account of a certain meridian we ran over during the night. The 130th meridian! If any of you are thinking of going globe-trotting I solemnly warn you to look out for that meridian. It's a bear! I didn't go to bed till well into the night, but they couldn't see and hear better than I do.

And now it develops that it isn't a real meridian, after all. It's just a "Christian Science meridian." One of those things that are really not real, but only "what they ain't." All right, I don't go to bed till well into the night, but they couldn't see and hear better than I do.

And now it develops that it isn't a real meridian, after all. It's just a "Christian Science meridian." One of those things that are really not real, but only "what they ain't." All right, I don't go to bed till well into the night, but they couldn't see and hear better than I do.

And Directions?
However, that's the price one pays for starting out to encircle the globe in a ship. I shouldn't be surprised any morning now to have them tell me we're sailing eastward, notwithstanding we started directly westward from San Francisco. You can't tell what they'll do on a ship. If I were giving you the facts as I see them, they would be that we haven't moved a foot in the last five days. It's all a bluff! They keep the engines going so as to give the appearance of motion, but they don't go forward an inch. I know because I've been checking on the scenery and we have been exactly in the same spot ever since we got out of sight of Honolulu.

Now we are supposed to be off Wake Island—look it up on the map—but it's just another one of those islands that you don't see, nor feel, you just "accept" it. Talk about "walking by faith," what about "sailing without sight?" Anyhow, I'm going to let them know that "they can't learn me nuthin'."

Fine Ship, However
It's a fine ship, though. I'm not writing an ad for the Dollar Line, but I must say, for the benefit of any who may be going abroad, that these people certainly give every consideration to the wants of their passengers. Our ship is just a big yacht-hotel, with every convenience and comfort. Jazz orchestra playing during meals and for dancing on the Veranda Cafe deck in the evening;

CHORAL CLUBS GIVE EISTEDDFOD TEST

Glendale and Burbank Organizations
Tie In Competition; Must Meet
Again to Decide Winner

Glendale and Burbank choral clubs sang to a tie score in the second night's feature event of the district Eisteddfod contests at the Broadway High school last night. Three noteworthy musical critics, acting as adjudicators and without collaboration, gave the two choral groups identical scores on the merits of their presentation of "Bedouin Love Song" by Stewart and "As Torrents in Summer" by Elgar.

The judges credited both clubs with a score of 85.3 per cent. W. J. Kraft, college of music, University of California, southern branch; Gage Christopher, baritone and chorus leader, and Bruno David Usher, Los Angeles critic, judged the contests.

The Burbank Choral club, composed of mixed voices, took the stage first under the direction of Charles L. Munroe. F. Stillman Moore accompanied the singers at the piano. They were followed by the Glendale Choral club with J. Arthur Myers as director, and Mrs. Gertrude Champlain Erb at the piano.

Must Meet Again
Both choral groups sang the same numbers, "Bedouin Love Song" and "As Torrents in Summer." At the conclusion of the program the two choruses were called to the stage and in unison repeated both numbers.

In order to decide the winning choral club in the Glendale district, it will be necessary for the two clubs to meet in a second competition. This will take place next Monday night at 7:30 o'clock at the Glendale Intermediate school. The winner in the "sing-off" will represent the district in the Eisteddfod finals to be held later in Los Angeles.

Symphony Orchestra
Other numbers on the program last night featured the Glendale Community Symphony orchestra, also under the direction of Mr. Myers. The orchestra opened the program with two selections, "Cardas" by Delibes and "Unfinished Symphony" (First Movement) by Schubert. Later the orchestra appeared with Wesley Kuhnle, Glendale artist, at the piano, in "Major Concerto" by Mozart. Mr. Kuhnle was enthusiastically applauded for his work. The orchestra concluded the program with "Mazurka" ("Coptelia") by Delibes.

Mrs. Gladys Shelton Fischer, Burbank, winner of the soprano solo contests, staged yesterday afternoon at the Van Groe studio, appeared again last night in a group of songs. She received high commendation from the judges as did the symphony orchestra. The adjudicators credited the orchestra with a score of 80.6 per cent.

Mrs. Mitchell Presides
Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, chairman of the music and chorus division of the Eisteddfod, presided over the contests last night. She was introduced by A. L. Baird, general chairman of the Eisteddfod and past president of the Glendale Community Symphony orchestra. Mrs. Mitchell presided over the contests last night. She was introduced by A. L. A large crowd heard the choral club competitions, filling a big portion of the two floors at the Broadway High school auditorium. Mrs. Roy A. BETROTHAL IS ANNOUNCED AT PARTY

Guests at Silver Wedding
Anniversary Are Told
Of Marriage Plans

A quarter century of happiness was reflected in the brilliant reception given last night at White Park Country club on Ventura boulevard, by Mr. and Mrs. D. Wilbur MacDonald of 436 West Broadway, Glendale, as a silver wedding anniversary celebration, and to announce the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Anita Sexton MacDonald to William Gustavus Mohn of Pasadena, son of H. C. Mohn of San Francisco.

Over 200 guests were invited to the affair from Glendale, Santa Barbara, Pasadena, Los Angeles, Covina and other southern cities, where Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald and their daughter have hosts of friends. Among the guests was Mr. Mohn's aunt, Mrs. Katharine M. Duncan of Altadena.

The attractive Aztec room at the clubhouse provided the artistic setting for the reception, while dancing was the diversion in the Egyptian room.

In Receiving Line
Green and silver predominated in the decorations of the Aztec room, where Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald, their daughter, and Mrs. MacDonald's mother, Mrs. Lucy Foster Sexton of Santa Barbara, received. They received under a canopy of dusty miller, white sage blossoms and maiden hair fern. From the center of the canopy hung a silver bell, made of dusty miller with a spray of pink lilies and silver maline. The flowers and greenery were used from Mrs. MacDonald's old home at Santa Barbara.

Mrs. MacDonald wore a gown of silver metallic cloth and silver lace, with corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley. Miss MacDonald, who is a striking blonde, was becomingly gowned in a bouffant creation of peach and gold changeable Gros de Londre silk, with gold lace flounce and small pearl ornaments. She wore an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Sexton wore a silk gown in blue and silver, trimmed in cream lace.

Mrs. Olive C. Burdick of Hollywood, arranged the musical program, enjoyed during the hours of receiving. Vocal numbers were, "O Promise Me" (Reginald De Koven), and "O Fair, O Sweet, and Hold" (Otto Cantor), Mrs. Louise K. Flack; "My Heart Is a Haven" (Irving Steigel), and "I Love You Truly" (Carrie Jacobs Bond), Mildred C. Jackson of Glendale; "The Year's At the Spring" (Mrs. H. A. A. Beach), Stille die Nacht" (Carl Bohm), Lee Starr (H. Bell), Florence G. Sewall of Hollywood, was accompanied.

Announcement Made
The betrothal announcement was most cleverly made and came as a complete surprise to the entire company. As the final strain of "I Love You Truly," sung by Mr. Jackson, was taken up by the club orchestra, three cunning little Glendale misses, Mary Louise Brown, in green velvet and coral lace, Betty Anna Biren in similar frock in orchid, and Mary Ruth Ripley, dressed in apricot like the other two, flitted out among the guests, carrying graceful green and silver baskets, tied with orchid, yellow, green and white maline, decorated with Cecil Brunner roses and ferns, bearing tinkling silver bells and filled with envelopes bearing the betrothal announcement.

During the later part of the evening entertainment features were dances by Loraine Phillips and Rider H. Myers of Highland Park. In a quaint old fashioned black taffeta gown and poke bonnet that belonged to her great, great grandmother, Miss Phillips danced a French gavotte. Later she and Mr. Myers in colorful costumes, danced the Spanish tango.

Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald were happily surprised when Paul Haugh on behalf of the club members, presented them with a beautifully carved silver Wedgewood bowl filled with Hoosier Beauty roses and daphnium.

Twenty-five Years Ago
The affair recalled a wedding twenty-five years ago in Oakland, where D. Wilbur MacDonald, a young Scotch Canadian from Nova Scotia, claimed as his bride Miss Lottie Sexton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sexton of Santa Barbara. The bride was a native Californian.

Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald went to Portland, Oregon, later returning to Southern California, where Mr. MacDonald has been engaged in the furniture business with the exception of a few years spent in the citrus industry in Covina. They have lived in Glendale the past three years.

Miss MacDonald was born in Portland, Oregon. Later, the Veterans of N. P. Banks post, G. A. R., are proud of the record made by Mary Jane Gillette tent, Daughters of Veterans, which is the first tent to make 100 per cent donation for the memorial tablet to be dedicated at the convention held in September at Grand Rapids, Michigan. A call came from the national patriotic instructor that each tent in the United States give ten cents per member to establish the custom of leaving a memorial tablet in each convention city. Mrs. Pearl Moore, patriotic chairman of the local tent, quickly raised her quota and forwarded it to national headquarters. A letter praising Glendale Daughters was read at the meeting last night.

New Open Air Temple Of Ashrama Dedicated

The new open air temple at Ananda Ashrama, La Crescenta, was dedicated Sunday, when the second anniversary of the establishment of Ashrama was celebrated. The open air temple is in a natural bowl surrounded by oak trees in the Sierra Madre hills. Next Sunday Swami Paramananda will speak on "Divine Ecstasy."

Marshall Field Once Said

"The difference between the man who spends all his salary and the man who saves, is the difference between the owner of a business and the man out of a job."

The same difference exists between the man who owns his own home, or the man who is paying for his home, and the man who rents. The man who is buying his home is saving, and the man who is renting is spending.

This Institution will help you to own your own home.

SMALL CHANGE IN POSTAL RECEIPTS

Recent Increase in Rates
Make Little Difference
In Glendale Office

That recent increases in postal rates will not result in a corresponding increase in postal receipts in Glendale was the belief expressed by Assistant Postmaster George Hallett today, following a partial check of business since April 15, when the new rates went into effect. Large concerns doing a heavy mailing business and the ones hardest hit by the increased rates, are rebudgeting their postal expenditures with a tendency to decrease, or at least keep at the previous figure their outlay for stamps on advertising matter and parcels post shipments. Mr. Hallett said.

In Los Angeles, where many large corporations swell the postal business, the decrease since the new rates went into effect has been appreciable, Postmaster P. P. O'Brien said yesterday.

In Glendale, where fewer concerns use the mails, the same effect has been noticed, although it has not been sufficiently strong to show a decided change in postal business to date. A slight raise has been noted.

"We also notice a decided tendency on the part of postoffice patrons, both commercial and private, to make greater use of first class mailing facilities since the increases on second, third and fourth class matter have gone into effect," Hallett said. "This is one of the main results hoped for in raising the rates on this class of mail matter. It was the hope of the department to eliminate much of the unnecessary bulky mail that clogs the postal machinery and delays expediting of all mail matter."

Genevieve Mulligan In Cast For College Play

Genevieve Mulligan, 321 East Chestnut street, a junior at the University of Southern California, has been selected for the cast of "The Taming of the Shrew," the annual School of Speech play, which is to be the first Shakespearean production presented on the campus for many years. The play will be staged in Bevard auditorium on June 15 during commencement week. Tryouts for the play have been held during the past two months.

Glendale Student Seen In Drama At College

William Hansen, 1213 Rossmoyne, took a leading part in Christopher Morley's "On the Shelf," which was presented last night at the University of Southern California under the auspices of Zeta Phi Eta, national honorary dramatic sorority. Proceeds of the play will be used for the national convention to be held at the Southern California campus in June.

EDUCATION AND PEACE

If the University of International Relations materializes at Burbank this valley will have an institution, not only unique, but one that may have considerable influence upon the future history of the world. We confess to ignorance of the plan and methods of the university, but it is assumed that the purposes of the school is to promote understanding and peace among the nations.

Those who have given study and thought to the subject of international harmony agree that education is the only medium through which this can be achieved. We, in this generation, are not internationally intelligent. A few years ago we were almost isolated from the countries of Europe and Asia. We were not greatly concerned with the problems of foreign nations, for they were not our problems. But in our generation rapid means of travel and communication are bringing Europe and the far east to our very doors. Also the war and the problems growing out of it have thrown the nations of the world together like fish caught in a net. Little as we may like it, our interests are bound up with those of other nations.

We are vitally concerned with the re-establishment of normal economic conditions in Europe, with the form of government in Russia, in Germany, in Italy and China. With other nations we are in the race for world markets. Europe and Asia look to us, too. Our immigration act affected many countries and our presidential election was of great interest in Europe.

The average person knows little about foreign relations and that is precisely the handicap we must overcome in the next generation if the United States is to dwell peaceably and happily with its neighbors.

David Starr Jordan stressed the need of education for peace in his prize-winning essay on world peace, and many other educators have expressed the same opinion.

A professor of history in an eastern school says that by working on the coming generation we can stamp out war. He advocated a balanced study of history, with one-third of the time spent on military history and the balance on other phases. "History," he says, "is a laboratory notebook in which we find recorded the results of experiments performed on other people and which depends for its value upon the accuracy of the experiment." He does not believe that Americans will become bloodthirsty through the study of military history or pacifists without it, but for the sake of honesty both sides must be taught. He believes that more time spent in the study of international relations of the present day and less on the traditions of the past is needed to make the next generation members of the world.

SCOPE OF SCIENCE

That scientists do not limit themselves in the things they study and discuss was indicated in a report of the recent meeting of the Pennsylvania Academy of Science. These men talked of everything from the structure of the stars to the structure of an atom. One of the papers read brought out that earthworms will thrive on a diet of paper or sawdust as well as on earth. Another dealt with the discovery of a rare grass. The Siamese twin behavior of a turtle with two heads came in for consideration. Experiments were described which tend to prove that the faster a substance moves, the heavier it becomes. Certain birds and stones were discussed and the increase of negro population was considered.

Recent awards made by the American Association for the Advancement of Science also bring out clearly the scope of science. The association divided its award for scientific accomplishment between two men. Dr. Edward Hubble of Mt. Wilson measured the two nearest nebulae. One of them is 750,000 and the other 930,000 light years away. Dr. L. R. Cleveland of Johns Hopkins university has been studying the parasitic protozoa which live in the intestines of white ants. He found out how to kill the protozoa without killing the ants.

This is known as the age of science. An endless search is going on for facts. Nothing is too small, nothing too great to provoke inquiry and study. We laymen sometimes wonder what purpose is being served in making experiments to prove that angelfish can live on sawdust and paper. Maybe when they have acquired a taste for these delicacies they will come up out of the lawn and devour the mass of advertising matter that is thrown there daily. And also most of us are not so greatly attached to our white ants but we could give them up if it really became necessary to kill the parasites which live in their intestines.

Of course many times these apparently insignificant and ridiculous findings lead to discoveries that are a great benefit to humanity. At any rate, can you imagine a subject embracing a wider range than measuring heavenly bodies so far away that they are outside the universe and studying the parasites of vermin?

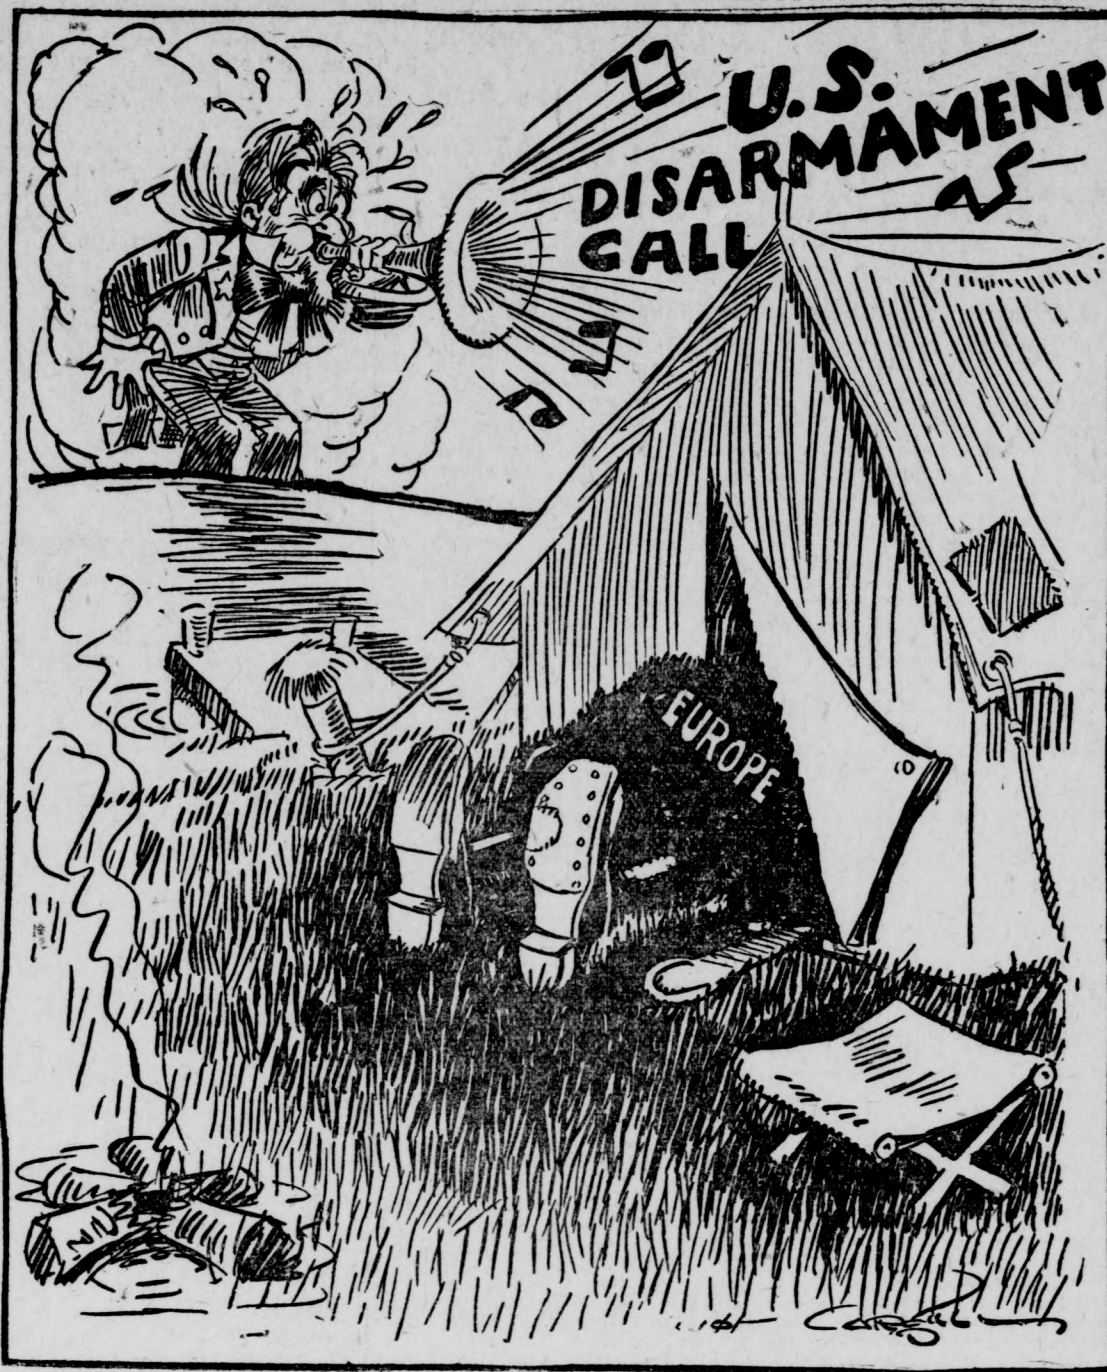

DOMESTIC ECONOMY

A prominent banker pays a tribute to the financial ability and prudence of women. There is nothing surprising in this, for woman has had training along the line of economics for years. From time immemorial she has managed the household on small and irregular allowances. Not knowing when another dollar was coming her way she had to make the one in hand stretch to its utmost limits in providing the most nourishing food and the most suitable clothing possible for her family. It is no wonder that she and her daughter and her granddaughter became expert in domestic economy.

Few men are capable of buying carefully, of shopping around to see where they can get the most for the least money or of planning to make the weekly wage go as far as possible. "Women have not had wide experience in handling large sums of money, owing to long-existing domestic conditions and the system of education," says this banker, "but in the smaller day-by-day economies of life woman reveals a great superiority over man."

It is always interesting, if somewhat of a shock at times, to learn what other people think of us. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, discussing the controversy over the Colorado river compact between the state of Arizona and the city of Los Angeles says that neither the ambition of Arizona nor of Los Angeles enlists much concern from outsiders, that the agricultural needs of the nation at present are more than met without diverting rivers into arid lands, and that, as for Los Angeles, the nation would never miss what she has to supply.

"CAN'T GET 'EM UP!"

Faculty Points

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The state of Texas has recently given a two-thousand-acre site and one million dollars as a starter, and a free hand for establishing a school in Southwestern Texas.

The president of this, Mr. P. W. Horn, gives the following points, which indicate what he is about to do with the institution:

1. Some colleges are factors for evil in individual lives and in building up citizenship for a democracy.
2. Faculty members should be the kind of men and women that we want our boys and girls to become.
3. Mental traits in the faculty are as easily transmissible as physical diseases.
4. The teacher who is little enough to be sorry when his colleague's salary is raised will tend to produce dwarfs among his students.
5. Faculty members should be young enough both chronologically and mentally, still to possess open minds and large capacity for growth.

6. Faculty members should set a high value on scholarship, a higher value upon human ability and a still higher value upon human character.

7. They should be people of enthusiasms and enthusiasms of the right kind.

8. A college that boasts that one-third of its Freshmen fail, is no more sensible and humane than a doctor who boasts that one-third of his patients die.

9. Self-support on the part of students who need or desire it should be made possible.

10. There is just as much botany to be learned from studying cotton as from the study of orchids.

11. To spend seven million dollars on a dormitory is a well-nigh wicked waste of money.

12. The moment standards of admission are used for the purpose of excluding from college those who might otherwise enter and profit from the work therein, colleges become instruments of the merest intellectual snobbery.

Horoscope

Although Uranus is in strongly benefic aspects today, according to astrology, there is much sinister planetary direction. Mercury and Jupiter are adverse.

It is well to avoid speculation and buying may be unfortunate. The stock market will bring grief to most persons while this configuration prevails.

There is a remarkable rule for aviation and aviators, for evidently interest will center on the building of an air fleet.

Inventors are to flourish this year, which will reveal one or two remarkable mechanisms long hidden from public approval.

There is a sign indicating new concern regarding degrees of human intelligence for there will be such demand for experts in every line of work that the mentally below par will have little chance in the future.

Merchants will do well to delay any sort of expansion of financial outlay until a more promising government of the stars prevails.

This is not an auspicious way for initiative in business affairs, for unexpected conditions will cause uncertainties, it is foretold.

Trade during the summer months will be active in many lines of manufactured goods, it is foretold.

Disasters to shipping are prognosticated and there may be unusual accidents at sea.

Deaths of noted men in the legal profession are presaged by the stars. Leaders in the religious field also will end careers within the next three months, astrologers forecast.

Certainly, if the stars are to be trusted, the king of England is to have a summer and autumn of many anxieties.

Persons whose birthdate it is should avoid all risks in business matters during the coming year.

Children born on this day may be much inclined to change and are likely to desire speculative or uncertain vocations such as acting or sculpture, invention or exploration.

These subjects of Taurus usually have splendid powers, mental and physical.

Today's Poem

Stanzas from "Maud"
O that 'twere possible
After long grief and pain
To find the arms of my true love
Round me once again!

When I was wont to meet her
In the silent, woody places
By the home that gave me birth,
We stood, I traced in long embrace

Mixt with kisses sweeter,
Than anything on earth.

A shadow flits before me,
Not thou, but like to thee;
Oh, Christ, that it were possible
For one short hour to see

The souls we loved, that they might tell us
What and where they be.

F. SUASTEGUI, commercial attaché of the Mexican embassy, traces the economic history of Mexico, draws a parallel between the United States and the southern republic, predicts widespread development and prosperity below the Rio Grande and urges closer co-operation between the two countries in the exchange of raw materials and manufactured products.

Senor Suastegui sketches the development of Mexico along economic lines from the time the Spaniards conquered the country. Coming down to the reign of President Porfirio Diaz, he gives that iron-handed ruler full credit for real development along highly important lines.

"However," he continues, "there was a cancer spot in his system that slowly ate up the complete structure. It was a complete absence of justice and consideration for the masses, and an absolute protection for the land barons and a few financiers."

"This condition brought about the civil war which occurred during the last fourteen years. It can readily be seen that slowly, painfully Mexico has been solving its problems, and that out of the melting pots of the revolutions the pure and bright gold of liberty has been obtained. First, independence; then the settlement of the religious problem, next a liberal constitution and finally the abolition of privilege and class oppression."

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNAIRD

Truth is our element of life, the philosophers tell us. Yet Emerson observes that if a man fastens his attention on a single aspect of truth and apply himself to that alone for a long time, the truth becomes distorted and not itself but falsehood.

Herein truth resembles the air, which is our natural element and the breath of our nostrils, but if a strong stream of CLARK KINNAIRD the same be directed on the body for a time, it causes cold, fever and even death.

How wearisome is the grammarian, the political or religious fanatic, or any possessed mortal whose balance is lost by the exaggeration of a single topic!

"It is incipient insanity," Emerson opines. "Every thought is a prison also."

Is it any better if the student, to avoid this offense and to liberalize himself, aims to make a mechanical whole of history, or science, or philosophy, by numerical addition of all the facts that fall within his vision?

"The world refuses to be analyzed by addition and subtraction," Emerson answers. "When we are young we spend much time and pains in filling our notebooks with all definitions of Religion, Love, Poetry, Politics, Art, in the hope that in the course of a few years we shall have condensed into our encyclopedia the net value of all the theories at which the world has yet arrived."

"But year after year our tables get no completeness, and at last we discover that our curve is a parabola, which arcs will never meet."

Emerson decided that neither by detachment nor by aggression is the integrity of the intellect transmitted to its works, but by a vigilance which brings the intellect in its greatness and best state to operate every moment.

"God offers to every mind its choice between truth and repose. Take which you please, you can never have both. Between these, as a pendulum, man oscillates."

The overwhelming majority of us accept repose.

Who's Who

Once it was coal and guns; now it is oil and air craft. The shifting scenes of international politics constantly bring to the foreground new names and new faces. Now it is Sir Samuel Hoare, British secretary of state for air.

A short time ago, it was announced that he will have £21,315,000 next year for the British air forces. Parliament is asked to vote £15,513,000, while the remainder will be made up by Colonial expenditures. This is £1,972,000 more Samuel had to spend last year.

Sir Samuel and the British Air Force are to the front also because of a report that the French are to build a large air base at Cherbourg, near Cherbourg. London newspapers give prominence to this report, implying that the base is intended to be used against England. Paris newspapers retort that "because England has naval bases at Dover and Portsmouth, the French do not immediately jump to the conclusion that Great Britain has hostile intentions against France."

The man who is leaving no stone unturned to give his country the greatest of air services has had a comparatively brief but distinguished career of public service, both nationally and internationally.

Educated at Harrow and at New College, Oxford, at both of which institutions he was to the fore in scholarship and athletics, he was private secretary to the Colonial Secretary of 1905, contested the Ipswich Division for a seat in Parliament and then became a member of the Royal Commission on the Civil Service.

Sir Samuel succeeded in 1915 to the title of Baronet held by his father, who had been the first of the line. In 1909 he had married Lady Maud Lygon, daughter of the sixth Earl of Beauchamp.

In 1921 Sir Samuel Hoare was made a deputy high commissioner of the League of Nations for the care of Russian refugees and in 1922 he became the British secretary of state for air. A seat in the cabinet was set aside for him in the following year.

Visiting Masons Push Plans For Organizing

The meeting of Master Masons who contemplate forming a new Masonic lodge in Glendale of sojourning Masons from jurisdictions outside of California, held last night in the lower hall of the Masonic temple on South Brand boulevard, was attended by an increased number of men not heretofore taking an active interest in this proposition. There are now nearly sixty names on the provisional list of members. Provision was made for financing the new lodge movement, and the chairman, Col. A. M. Dewey, was authorized to make plans for future meetings twice each calendar month. If arrangements cannot be made to meet in the Masonic temple, other quarters will be secured pending the building of the new temple at South Central avenue and Maple street.

Colonel Dewey was unanimously elected to be the first master of the lodge, when chartered by the grand lodge of California, and Aubrey Artiss was confirmed as secretary. Sojourning Masons not locally affiliated with other lodges are asked to call at 204 East Broadway and leave their names and addresses with Mr. Dewey. The meeting tendered a vote of thanks to the master of Unity lodge for the courtesies extended to the proposed new lodge.

HOME AFFAIRS BLAMED FOR ALL CRIME

Judge Carlos S. Hardy Talks On Need Of Discipline At Club Meeting

"The crime problem is a home problem. The two underlying causes of crime are failure of the home to give the child necessary discipline and failure to surround the child with religious influence," Judge Carlos S. Hardy, juvenile court judge, told Tuesday afternoon club members and guests at luncheon yesterday. "The most precious asset of America today is its boys and girls," said Judge Hardy. "We must remember that youth has different ideals of law and order from that it had years ago. In Los Angeles county there are more rich people constantly coming than in any other community in the world, and therefore, more professional criminals are attracted here. Then there are the boys who leave home in the mid-west and east and arrive in Los Angeles practically penniless, and the only places we have to offer them are pool halls, often training schools of crime."

Teach Obedience
"It is up to the home to teach obedience, truthfulness and honesty. The government of the United States in all its departments recognizes the eminence of God. In the United States but 12 per cent of the children are attending Sunday school, the rest receive no religious education at all."

"The crime problem will not be solved by the abolition of capital punishment or by building more penitentiaries, but by discipline and religious influence in the home."

Judge Hardy was accompanied by his wife, who was introduced during the luncheon hour. Other speakers were Walter David, impresario, who spoke on celebrities he has known; and Jinab-I-Fadil, Persian philosopher.

Persian Speakers
Mr. David's personal reminiscences of great musicians proved most interesting. In closing he declared that "the great singers of the world are destined to come from Southern California."

Jinab-I-Fadil amazed his hearers when he stated that he had studied the English language but fourteen months, and then by conversation only. He told of his travels in other parts of the world, of his study of humanity and aim to bring about harmony and unity among the people of the world.

Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, club president, presided over the luncheon. She accepted most graciously the compliments paid the club on its progressive organization and beautiful clubhouse, and told of honors she received at the recent district convention at Santa Barbara for the club.

Reciprocity Program
Club presidents and delegations from all parts of Los Angeles District were received in the afternoon for the reciprocity program. Club members and guests filled the auditorium.

As presiding officer, Mrs. Montgomery greeted the guests and presented Mrs. C. W. Houston, general curator, who in turn introduced the club curators, each of whom gave two-minute reports of her particular department. Curators reporting were Mrs. Estelle Brain, arts and crafts; Miss Ida D. Myers, American citizenship and legislation; Mrs. C. H. Temple, Bible; Mrs. C. H. Vandewater, drama; Mrs. Roy Ballagh, fine arts; Mrs. R. W. Bolton, literature; Mrs. C. Putnam, maids and young matrons; Mrs. Roberta T. Young, music; Mrs. W. H. Verity, Parliamentary law; Mrs. Chester Kling for Mrs. H. W. Ralston, Shakespeare; Mrs. W. D. Woodill, travel. Each report contained featured activities in the various club departments, reflecting the department work of district, state and general federations. Accounts of general mental activities and Mrs. A. H. Montgomery's report given at the convention have all appeared in the Glendale Evening News in previous editions.

Change Vote Hours
Action was taken during the business hour in favor of keeping the polls open at the annual election in May from 10 o'clock in the morning until 3 o'clock in the afternoon. A letter was read from Mrs. L. C. Brand expressing her appreciation of the kindness and sympathy of club members during Mr. Brand's illness and at the time of his death.

Mrs. John W. Cotton led community singing at luncheon and in the afternoon, with Mrs. Roberta T. Young at the piano.

Artistic in every detail was the afternoon program, three scenes from Shakespeare's "The Winter's Tale" by members of the Shakespeare department, directed by the curator, Mrs. Henry W. Ralston. The work was indicative of the work done at the meetings of the department, units of the club's cultural activity.

Appearing in the prologue and interludes were Jean Edwards, Felicity Edwards and Edgar Edwards, whose Shakespearean style was most remarkable for juveniles.

Members of Cast
Mrs. Ralston as Hermione, queen to Leontes, and Mrs. J. T. Edwards as Leontes, king of Sicilia, are deserving of much praise for their talented portrayals. Appearing with them were Mesdames Helen Ward, B. O. Holbrook, Eugene Brown, J. C. Waite, Colin

FREE BOND ISSUES SOUGHT BY ATWATER

Residents Urge Los Angeles Council To Put Question of Library, New Bridges, Tunnel on Ballot

Some time this week the Los Angeles City Council will decide whether or not three large bond issues, each one having an important bearing on Atwater Park, will be placed before the voters of the city at the time of the June general election.

These proposed issues, embodying a total expenditure of $6,700,000, if passed, will mean three big improvement projects for the Atwater districts. The issues, along with several others, not directly affecting the district, are now pending before the civic projects committee of the City Council. They are:

A $1,000,000 issue for branch libraries.

A $5,000,000 issue for bridges and viaducts.

A $700,000 issue for pedestrian tunnels.

Atwater Park has had a request for a branch library building pending before the library board for many months. Recent advice from the president of the board were to the effect that if the library bonds carry, the district will be assured a suitable library building.

Bridges Are Needed
Probably of greatest importance to the entire San Fernando valley section is the bridge bond issue, including appropriations totaling $1,200,000 for new bridges at Glendale boulevard and Fletcher drive. The Glendale boulevard span, to branch in two directions, connecting with Hyperion way and the main road into Los Angeles on the other side of the river, will cost $900,000 of this amount, it is estimated.

Included in the $700,000 issue for school tunnels is an appropriation of $15,000 for the proposed bore across Glendale boulevard at Atwater avenue which will serve more than 350 children attending the Atwater school and living on the north side of the Pacific Electric tracks.

May Go On Ballot
With endorsement of City Engineer Van Norman already attached to the bridge issue and the school tunnel projects, little fear of these two issues being turned down by the council and thus being kept off the ballot, is expressed. In the case of the library bonds, it is believed favorable action taken by Mayor Cryer, advocating the library issue, is more than enough to assure this item's being put on the ballot also.

In addition to the keen interest being expressed in the first district councilmanic fight and in the race for the mayoralty of Los Angeles, Atwater voters will be much concerned over the passage of these three bond issues.

ASK ACTION ON SCHOOL

In a letter addressed to the Board of Education and forwarded to that body today, a demand upon the board to show reasons "why the addition at the Atwater grammar school is not being started" is made by the Atwater Improvement association. Funds for the addition were voted over a year ago in the form of a bond issue. Several months ago a protest to the board at the apparent inaction and failure to start plans for the building was voiced through the improvement association. Later, a second protest against continued inaction was filed with the board.

Announcement was then made by the educators that plans for the building were being completed and that bids would be advertised for shortly. Nothing more has been heard of the matter, officers of the improvement body declare, however.

GIVE STAND ON RACE

No candidate for City Council from the first district has been endorsed by the Atwater Improvement association. President Arthur M. Gilman declared today in sending a copy of the following resolution to The Glendale Evening News for publication. At no time has The Evening News referred to any candidate as being endorsed by the improvement association. The list of papers referred to in the resolution does not include The Evening News. Following is the resolution:

Whereas articles have appeared in Los Angeles and Glendale papers to the effect that the Atwater Improvement association has endorsed a particular one of the several candidates for councilman in the first district, and Whereas, the Atwater Improvement association has not by any action as a whole or by any action of its executive board, endorsed any of the candidates for councilman from the first district, and

Whereas, the Atwater Improvement association is organized for the purpose of improving civic conditions in the city of Los Angeles and particularly in the area covered by said association, and Cable, H. L. Clotworthy, Ernest Carr, E. A. Bayley, A. C. Rowsey, W. F. Nash, Jr., Virginia Edwards, Christine Edwards, Eleanor Edwards, Edith Bayley, Lucille Eldredge, all of whom were splendid in their various parts.

In the sheep-shearing scene, Mrs. William Nash, Jr., as the singing beggar, and Helen Carrie Lindrum, Helen Orr, Leona Hunt, Evelyn Hunt, Kathryn Stanley and Mildred Maranville, pupils of the Pearl Keller School of Dancing, won hearty applause. Mrs. Roberta T. Young was accompanied. Harp music was given by Mrs. Enona Hopkins. Vocal selections were given by Mrs. Virginia Biddlecom, accompanied by Mrs. J. A. Baker. After the program, tea was served by members of the hospitality committee.

Hindenberg will be either bad, or good. Certainly he will not be

WORLD HEARS GLENDALE'S INVENTION

William C. Cutler's Talking Picture Device Stirs Eastern Capital

The perfected machine for synchronizing pictures and voice developed by a remarkable but simple process and evolved after years of research and experimentation by William C. Cutler, 1327 South Louise street, has created a sensation in New York and Washington.

A scientific demonstration given in New York before a group of scientists and writers by Lee DeForrest recently focused the eyes of the entire world. A film of President Coolidge showing him in action was projected. And as the film unrolled Coolidge talked to the audience from the screen. Every word was perfectly synchronized with lip movements and with his every action.

Rights Are Sold
Cutler sold his rights to the machine to a group of New York and German scientists and capitalists on April 3 for a cash consideration and royalties that will total nearly $500,000. According to information that has filtered back from New York since the demonstration in that city that caused a world-wide flurry of interest, they were representatives of the DeForrest interests. A gigantic corporation is now in process of formation to market Cutler's remarkable invention.

In an all-day demonstration given by Cutler in his workshop on South Louise street on April 2, 20,000 feet of "talking film" was reeled off and the details of the invention was explained. The following day the offer was made and accepted.

It was the invention that scientists throughout the world had sought. DeForrest had been searching for just such a machine for years, and is said to have named it the "photophone."

"The Wonderful Thing," the play which has made such a hit with audiences at a past week, will be held over by popular demand, and will be given, as usual, at 8:15 o'clock on that night, to be followed by the supper-dance in the banquet room after the performance.

All members of the Dobinson company will be present to greet their many friends and an enjoyable evening is assured those who attend the Playhouse on Thursday evening, May 7. Reservations may be made at the Playhouse box office, phone Glendale 4488.

Cigar Store Owner Is Held In 'Dry' Offense

John B. Coons, proprietor of a cigar store at 706 East Broadway, was arrested last night by Detective Lieutenant Royle, Detective Sergeant Williams and Officer Claxton on a charge of possession of intoxicating liquor. Five large kegs and one gallon container filled with cider, alleged to have fermented were seized.

Coons before Police Judge F. H. Lowe today asked a jury trial and was released on $300 cash bail. Trial was set for May 22 at 9 a. m. Attorney G. R. King has been retained to defend him.

The cider was examined by Miss Frances Stowell, city bacteriologist, and was declared by her to have become "hard." Police allege that Coons had been selling the cider to customers. Coons, however, will base his defense on the allegation that the cider had become "hard" after he purchased it, through no fault of his own.

RUTH UNABLE TO LEAVE HOSPITAL

Doctor Reports He May Be Out Of Lineup Until Middle Of Season

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service.
NEW YORK, April 29.—In spite of assurances to the contrary, it became evident today that the New York Yankees will not have the privilege of Babe Ruth's daily society until well on toward the middle of the current American league season, if then. This fact was made apparent when Dr. Edward King, his personal physician, declared that Ruth would not be able to leave the hospital for three weeks or a month, confirming the general suspicion that his illness is more serious than reports from his bedside would seem to indicate.

After leaving the hospital, Ruth must undergo a period of convalescence before resuming an active career on the ball field, the physicians said. The middle of June or later was then set for the date of Ruth's probable return to the diamond.

"It all depends on how quickly the Babe recovers his strength," Dr. King said.

Taking No Chances

"Ruth has always recuperated quickly from his various illnesses and I think he will do so in the present instance. However, he has been quite a sick man and we will take no chances."

The doctor denied reports that Ruth was suffering from a malady that might demand frequent attention from time to time in the years to come.

Club Needs Him

This latest development means the Yankees must undertake an important western trip without the services of the great man and a glance at the standing of the club is sufficient to convince anyone that they need him now as they never did before. For some reason the Yankees have taken Ruth's loss more to heart than on previous occasions and have folded up like a portable tent.

In 1922 they played better ball without Ruth and Meusel for the first six weeks of the season than they did after the return of the two stars. This time they have simply collapsed all over the situation, probably because they haven't enjoyed the pitching they had several years ago.

They are now six full games behind the Boston Red Sox and New York is beginning to fear the worst. It has good reason for so doing. The club is three years older than it was when Ruth and Meusel were sent out to grass by Judge Landis. Its five-star pitching staff is no more and Everett Scott at shortstop will soon be hobbling about the garden of a nearby veterans' home. The Yankees are not a ball club to stake a prospective champion to a six-game lead and get away with it.

'Murder Mystery' In Chicago Is Exploded

CHICAGO, April 29.—Belief that a human head found today in an alley back of a loop building might be that of the headless and limbless torso of a woman found in a sewer catch basin near the Budlong golf links, was dispelled when Coroner's Physician William McNalley announced after examination of the gruesome find that it had been saved from the embalmed body of a man.

HOUSING PROBLEM IN CITY IS TOLD

J. F. McClish Reports Few Vacant Houses Found In Glendale

That there are far fewer vacant houses and business locations in Glendale than many persons suppose and that, if the truth regarding this small percentage was known, property values over the whole city would be enhanced, were the declarations of J. F. McClish before the Glendale Realty board today noon when he advocated a survey to be conducted by the board to determine the extent of vacancies.

After considerable discussion the board voted to conduct a preliminary investigation through a special committee before deciding on the proposed survey. Members of the committee will be Mr. McClish, Charles B. Guthrie, Spencer Robinson, S. S. Gilhuly and E. P. Hayward.

After President William L. Twining and other members of the board had attacked the present title certificate system and advocated the general adoption of Torrens titles, it was voted to bring Superior Judge York to the meeting of the board two weeks from today to discuss the Torrens system. Judge York, one of the foremost advocates of Torrens certificates, passes on all such documents issued in the county of Los Angeles. M. H. Hartrant of Tujunga, advocate of Torrens titles on the state realty board, will also be present at the meeting.

Message Is Read

A message from Assistant Vice-President A. E. Hargrove of the National Real Estate association was read to the board by A. H. Folsom, Mr. Hargrove was scheduled to address the meeting, but was unable to get to Glendale.

Ferd Goodfellow, subdivider of Acacia Hills, explained to the board his plan for operating his subdivision business without the assistance of outside salesmen, keeping all commissions within the ranks of Glendale realty firms themselves.

Former Mayor Spencer Robinson was called upon by President Twining and addressed the board briefly. The meeting today was held at Spaghetti Station Number One on East Colorado street.

POLITICAL FEUDS HIT NEW ORLEANS

Police Department Captain Dies By Own Hand; Enemies Blamed

By GEORGE N. COAD
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1923.

NEW ORLEANS, April 29.—The feuds which used to make New Orleans politicians and police officials extremely poor risks for life insurance companies, appear likely to be excelled in bitterness by the feud which now has broken out and gives promises of widening in scope and deepening in venom.

One faction has charged the other with practically murdering Captain Charles Hemard, of the police department, who died by his own hand on Tuesday.

"The idea of self destruction which his detractors placed in his mind through newspaper stories, and whispered rumors," assert the late Captain's friends, "were the cause of his death."

Although the present feud arose, ostensibly over an alleged frameup which Captain Hemard was charged with engineering, it was from the outset a struggle for the control of the police department.

Chief Maloney, a colonel in the world war, a soldier of fortune in the tropics, and a life-long companion of that famous Central American revolutionary, General Lee Christmas, is popular with a great section of the city. With a very small force he has worked wonders, his friends claimed, in policing the city. For a long time, indeed, even his enemies admitted his value.

Frameup Charged

But as the new administration was about to take office, it was feared that the chief's popularity might force the new mayor to keep him, and so his enemies rushed to attack his ability, while his friends engaged in strenuous efforts to throw a mantle of virtue and heroism over him.

Captain Hemard became involved in an alleged attempt to stage a frame-up with a weak-minded youth, armed with a police-furnished revolver, as the bad man. The chief, it was alleged, was to rush in and capture the bad man and be the grand hero of the party.

But something slipped and the chief arrived after the bad man had fled. Nevertheless the newspaper carried the story that the credit for the capture and the feud was on.

All the enmity created by the recent campaigning in which the old machine returned to power for the fourth time in 20 years, flared forth on this occasion.

Nothing but the feuds of the last generation, when those politicians who made pretense of fighting gentlemen settled matters by pistols and swords and the less pretensions by bricks and clubs, can compare with it.

BANDIT DEMANDS $150 TO RETREAT

Noted Highwayman Willing To Call It Quits If Cash Forthcoming

BELGRADE, April 29.—Yussef Mekhonnich wants to retire from the brigandage business; but Yussef wants the police to finance his retirement.

Yussef is known as the famous Sandjak of the Novi Bazar district. He has written the following businesslike letter to the police:

"If you want to get rid of me once and for all, send me 10,000 dinars (about $150) as traveling expenses to Constantinople. I want to retire there. I think this disbursement will be a trifle to the authorities in comparison with what punitive expeditions against me have cost and will cost in the future if you do not pay me the 10,000 dinars. Pay me, and then I will let you be in peace."

In view of the fact that the spring is now here and brigands are able to leave their mountain retreats, Yussef's proposition is timely.

NOT DAVIS' FAULT

Councilman Tower introduced an ordinance entitled, "An ordinance of the council of the city of Glendale changing the name of Watson court to Rangeview drive, within said city," which was read and laid on the table.

SCHOLAR BANDIT RIVALS CHAPMAN

Chicago Runs Down Suspect Of Clever Jobs In Past Few Years

By O. L. SCOTT
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1923.

CHICAGO, April 29.—The student-criminal, quiet, well-educated, sawed-off in stature, apparently the most harmless of creatures as he carries on his studies in a downtown library here, turns out now to be the most hunted criminal in the country, possessor of a record in crime said to match that of Gerald Chapman for daring, and to surpass it for cunning.

Banker after banker had identified Henry Ferneke, 29 years old, scarcely five feet tall, as the leader of a band that has terrorized the outlying Chicago banks with scores of daylight robberies during the past four years. At the same time police are waiting for authorities from New York for confirmation of the details whether this is the man wanted for killings in both of those states.

Insider Squeals

Little of the sobby sentimentality that surrounded the much-captured Chapman is attached to Ferneke. He has been too clever to get into police clutches until now, and only because an insider "squealed" on him was he caught when carrying on his studies to perfect a bomb to blind bank employees and make his work more easy, and to devise a chemical to open safes without making a racket.

Back in 1914, when Ferneke was 18 years old, he first came to the attention of the police. He then held up a downtown skyscraper office, and, when captured, told the authorities that he had chosen banditry as a profession, in order to make enough money to support a wife. For that crime he served two years in prison. Since then he has been hunted, but never found, until now.

His business, carried on with all the daring of a desperado, is estimated to have netted him nearly half a million dollars during the past year.

Simple Tactics

His tactics always have been simple. With one or two trusted accomplices, according to the police version, Ferneke would enter an outlying bank, usually a small community institution, force all those inside to lie on the floor, then scoop up the money in sight and make a quick getaway. A score of such robberies have been attributed to him during the last year.

For four years a special detail of detectives has been charged with the sole responsibility of capturing this criminal. It has spent most of its time snooping around the underworld, expecting to find Ferneke in some disreputable dive. Instead, the detail ran into him deeply engrossed in a work on chemistry, pursuing his studies in a downtown Michigan avenue library.

Now that his career is cut short Ferneke is most concerned with clearing himself of the charges held against him in the east.

"That's a bum rap they have against me in New York and in Pennsylvania," the young bandit says. "I never was in either place, and I never have been charged with four killings. That's all off."

RIGHTFUL POLICY TOLD BY HUGHES

Former Secretary of State Defends Commercial Reciprocity Idea

NEW YORK, April 29.—Unconditioned and unbiased commercial reciprocity with Germany was defended as the highest type of American diplomacy in an address by former Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes today. He was speaking to the State Chamber of Commerce, to which he had just been admitted as a member.

"When another government is willing to give us reciprocity, equal-treatment for our vessels in foreign trade, we should be willing to make a like agreement," Hughes said, referring to the German-American trade treaty and the influences brought to bear when it was under Senate consideration.

He said reservations in the German-American trade treaty left the way open for a change in its reciprocal arrangements, but predicted the time would never come when we would make that change.

Portable Church for Mining Camp Citizens

RENO, Nev., April 29.—Under the auspices of the Presbyterian denomination, a portable church is being constructed for service in remote mining camps. Doors, windows, walls, floor and helfry will be shipped in small sections. Otis L. Linn, field secretary of the church, says the portable place of worship will first be erected at the new mining camp of Gilbert. Later, if it is desired to move to some other location, the building can be quickly dismantled.

Furnished Exclusively to The Glendale Evening News

CHICAGO, April 29.—"Are you lost? Don't worry. Ask a policeman, taxi driver, street car man, newsboy, doorman, elevator man, floorwalker, clerk—or step into any place of business. Every Chicagoan likes to be courteous to visitors. For detailed information about anything in Chicago, ask the Chicago Association of Commerce—Main 4808."

This message to the stranger in the city is contained in a vest-pocket information booklet published by the trade department of the association.

This department is offering its services to the 35,000 or 40,000 visitors who come to Chicago daily. The association has been assured of the co-operation of all the railroads and other transportation lines, transfer companies, taxi-cab and motor-bus organizations, surface lines, elevated roads, hotels, business establishments, police department and other public officials.

The modern woman's place in the sun is no different from her grandmother's place in the shade.

Speaking before the joint meeting of the Tenth district of the Federation of Women's clubs and the Edgewater Catholic club, Mrs. John Paul Goode presented some food for thought which might well have been captioned, "What a Woman Legislator Thinks About."

"Our foremothers," Mrs. Goode said, "asked for a sheltered place, but the modern women are asking for a free field and no favors. Men as yet are unaccustomed to this new policy of 'give and take.' They like to dispense favors."

"But women's activities are not so different from what they have been. From time immemorial it has been woman's duty to care for the home. She has been concerned with the welfare of her family. Today she no longer can determine what its future shall be. That is in the hands of the children themselves."

"So it is only proper that she use the new tools at hand—those of legislation—in an endeavor to keep within her own hands the conduct of the home and the determination of the environment which shall make for the character of her children."

Action on the new $300,000,000 terminal to accommodate the fourteen roads now using the Dearborn, La Salle and Grand Central stations is expected soon, with the roads under the order of Colonel A. A. Sprague, commissioner of Public Works, to do "something about their plans" by July 1.

It has been rumored for some time that fear of the withdrawal of the Van Sweringen group—the Erie, Nickel Plate, Pere Marquette and Chesapeake and Ohio—from the present New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Rock Island, Santa Fe group would interfere with the financing of the project.

Rumor has it that these roads have been negotiating with the Illinois Central terminal plans and that the Chesapeake & Ohio has already gone over to the Illinois Central terminal.

As a reward for their efforts during the freshman year, the sixty chosen ones "will study," the announcement says, "the social order, considering the problems of family and community life, of custom, public opinion, government, social service, education and industry."

The course, the announcement adds, "will touch the fields of sociology, political science, social science, education, home economics, hygiene, medicine, political economy, art, music, literature, science, history, philosophy, and religion."

Freshmen who stopped to "pause, consider and concentrate" wondered whether it wouldn't be wise to flunk a course or two so as to give some of the other freshmen a chance at the "reward."

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS
Copyright, 1925, By The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Uncle Butter, the goat gentleman, was getting ready one morning to skip over the fields to look for some old, brown paper, which he was very fond of chewing, when he saw Uncle Wiggily hopping up the front path.

"Why, Uncle Wiggily! How stylishly dressed you are today," bleated the goat gentleman. "Are you going to look for some adventures, with your Sunday clothes on?"

"No," answered Mr. Longears, with a funny little twinkle of his pink nose. "I am going to be married. This is my wedding day."

"You—going—to—get married!" cried Uncle Butter in surprise. "To whom?"

"To Mrs. Jump. A rabbit widow," answered Uncle Wiggily. "You see Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, my muskrat lady housekeeper, is getting rather old, and tired of looking after my hollow stump bungalow. She needs a rest. So I am going to get married, though of course Nurse Jane will live with me and look after me and Mrs. Jump—or, I suppose, I shall have to call her Mrs. Uncle Wiggily in a little while. Come and see me get married."

"I will," bleated the goat, and then he laughed. "What are you laughing at?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, something funny I just thought of," answered Uncle Butter. "And now I'll get on my good clothes, for I want to look slick and proper to see you married. I'll have my hoofs and horns polished."

A little while after that Uncle Wiggily and Mrs. Jump the rabbit widow, were wedded in a green glade in the woods, by Jack-in-the-Pulpit, and then the newly married couple and their friends went to Uncle Wiggily's bungalow for the wedding breakfast.

"I hope you will be very happy with your wife, Uncle Wiggily," squeaked Nurse Jane, as she kissed Mr. Longears on the tip of his pink, talking nose.

"Thank you, and I want you to live with us just the same as you lived with me all these years," invited the bunny, and Mrs. Jump, or, rather, Mrs. Wiggily as she was now, said the same thing.

Just as they were sitting down to breakfast, Uncle Wiggily noticed the parlor door slowly opening, and a number of little rabbit faces peered out.

"Who are all the little rabbits?" he asked. "There are more of them behind that door than Sammie and Susie Littletail and Baby Bunny. Who are they?"

"They are my little rabbit children," laughed the blushing widow bride. "I have been saving them as a surprise for you. Come out, children."

Out they leaped from behind the door, where they had been hiding—six, eight, ten, twelve—forty-seven, all together.

"My, what—what—what a lovely lot of little rabbit children!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, and he was much surprised. "But I like them," he cried. "I just love them. Nurse Jane, set places for all of my new bunnies. They were Mrs. Jump's, but now they are mine."

"Hello, new daddy," cried the little boy and girl rabbits to Uncle Wiggily, and they kissed him and hugged him. And then, all of a sudden, when Uncle Wiggily was passing his wife a piece of the wedding cake, made of turnips and cabbages, all of a sudden, the bunny gentleman felt a sharp pain in one leg under the table.

"Oh! Ouch! Wowch!" he cried, jumping up. "Has the Woolly Woe come to my wedding breakfast to bite me?"

"No, Uncle Wiggily—I mean daddy!" cried Nipper, one of the new little boy rabbits. "A Wolf didn't bite you. I—now—I just happened to stick a pin in your leg."

"You stuck a pin in my leg," cried the surprised Mr. Longears. "What for?"

"I—now—I wanted to see if the pin was sharp," answered Nipper. "And I guess it was—'cause you jumped like anything."

"Nipper, Nipper, that was very naughty of you," said his mother. "Please don't do it again. Will you forgive him this time, Wiggily?" and again she kissed Mr. Longears.

"Um—er—O, yes. I'll forgive him!" said the bunny gentleman, and then he laughed, and so did Uncle Butter.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

"Dear Doctor: I am a young man, 21 years old, five feet, eleven inches tall. I would like to join a certain organization where the minimum height is six feet. Is there any possible way of getting the extra inch?—Six-footer."

The Bible intimates that you can't by being anxious add a cubit to your stature, but perhaps you can add that inch. (A cubit is about 22 inches.)

However, in an article written by Dr. John Harvey Kellogg is this statement: "McClellan, a famous English trainer, gives an account of a young recruit who took a new start in development and grew four inches after he was 20 years of age, as a result of setting-up drills."

So there are hopes for you, Six-footer.

You want to think about your diet as well as the exercise. You should have a lot of greens, one pint or two of milk a day, whole grain breads and cereals, nuts, etcetera; in other words a more natural diet. No smoking for you—don't forget that. Lots of sleep, too, in the fresh air. Will you let me know if you get that extra inch?

72 POUNDS OFF—30 TO GO
"Dear Doctor Lulu: Some nine months ago, I saw some of your articles in the paper, and realizing that I was a 'little' overweight (I weighed only 243 pounds and am five feet, five inches tall, 47 years old—terrible, isn't it?) I just sneaked into your circle without saying even 'howdy.' I did not send for your booklet on reducing, only through neglect. But, dear Doctor Lulu, I have lost in the nine months that I have been grabbing information from the column, just 72 pounds. Isn't that great?"

My dear Doctor: I am delighted with me for doing this. I had become most miserable from such excess fat, but thanks to you, Doctor

Lulu, I am feeling fine now. I can walk, climb stairs, can go to bed and sleep, oh, so well now. "I want to ask you how I can control my appetite for meat. I'm a real bulldog, when it comes to meat. Meat is the hardest thing for me to turn down."

"I can't exercise very much for I have a bad hernia. What should I do about this? Is an operation the best thing? The doctor says it is a double hernia and nothing but an operation will help. What do you say?"

"Goodbye, Doctor Lulu. May the Lord bless you and your work. I will slip in again some day and tell you how much I have lost, for I can't be stopped now. Yours forever,—Mrs. R."

Seventy-two pounds! I'll say that's great. No wonder you are feeling so much better.

You need not turn down meat. You can have it once a day; not too much, however, for contrary to popular impression, protein itself, if it is in excess of the needs, can be transformed into fat; in the process of digestion and assimilation, one-half of its substance is released as carbohydrate. Another reason for limiting flesh foods is that if too much is taken, it irritates the kidneys.

There is no doubt that you should have an operation for your hernia, but you doctor probably will advise you to get down to normal weight first. Fat tissue does not heal well and a fat person is what we call a good operative risk. You are now down to 171. You should weigh around 140, so you are still 30 pounds too heavy.

Thank you for writing, and do keep us posted.

"Mrs. E. S. B." has kindly sent us this recipe for Italian Ravioli as made in Milan, Italy:
Dough: Beat three eggs light with one-third cup of cold water, then stir this mixture into one pound of flour, thus making a dough the consistency of pie crust (add a little more flour if necessary). Toss this onto a board and roll out into a large, but not-too-thin sheet. Cut into squares measuring two by three and one-half inches.

Filling: Into a bowl put one and one-fourth pounds of ricotta (pot cheese) and add three tablespoons of this filling onto each square of dough, fold other side of square over, and press edges together with a fork. Drop into boiling water, just as you would cook macaroni, till soft. Use two boiling pots rather than crowd too many ravioli into one. When cooked, place them on a serving platter close together, add a layer of grated Italian cheese over all, cover the cheese with some of the following sauce, then add another layer of the cooked ravioli, another layer of cheese and top with the remainder of the sauce.

Sauce: Italian lard comes in chunks like salt pork; chop one-half pound of this, and then melt it in an iron frying pan. Add one minced onion and two cloves of garlic cut fine, and cook till the onion is a light brown; now remove onion and garlic and add two small cans of the best tomato paste, one cup of hot water, a small piece of Mazzicola minced fine, one large tablespoon of sweet red pepper paste or else one can of pimentos chopped fine, and cook slowly, keeping hot till ready to use. Crisco may be used instead of the Italian lard. Other seasonings may be substituted for the Italian ingredients mentioned above (in case the housekeeper does not live within reach of an Italian grocery store.)

This recipe serves ten people. It is indeed a treat—just try it!

Chats On Beauty

By EDNA KENT FORBES

WELL KEPT HANDS

Hands are an index to character. They indicate carelessness or fastidiousness, therefore it is impossible to overemphasize the importance of keeping them looking nice. The worst of it, they show up not only the character of the woman herself, but of her mother and grandmothers for several generations. Good hands show good family, good blood, a family of which, last generation, we called ladies and gentlemen. They could be that, and yet work hard every day.

But slim, aristocratic hand, or wide pudgy hands are matters of inheritance and beyond a woman's control. Nothing can be done to alter the actual shape, but a great deal can be done to alter the apparent shape of them. Moderately pointed, moderately long nails will make fat little fingers seem longer and therefore slimmer. Too pointed nails, however, will dwarf the fingers, you must experiment and find just how to have yours filled. A short hand with short fingers, but nicely shaped, looks better with nails that are not pointed, for if the hand is well shaped its shortness is an asset.

If the skin is kept white, smooth, free from scars and stains, and if the nails look freshly manicured and nicely polished, the hands will look well no matter how ordinary their shape. That's as much as any one can do either toward improving bad hands or making pretty ones more attractive. It's quite enough, usually. Look critically at the hands of all your friends; the perfect shape described at such length in old-fashioned novels is hardly ever to be found. As a race, we Americans have had hands and good feet; but our hands show character if not beauty.

Polly Ann—As you only weigh 15 pounds too much you could easily get rid of this by eating less than usual at each meal and by omitting all rich and sweet foods for a few weeks.

Margaret E. N.—There is some condition in your system that causes your nails to get ridged.

Hands Need a Lot of Care

hands immersed in water, you should rub some oil into such nails, as they have been depleted of the natural oils and the trouble becomes aggravated unless you keep the nails softened by supplying oil to them again.

Tomorrow—Figures

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. EDDIE HUFFMAN GETS DECISION

Takes Ten-Round Fight At Vernon With Johnson; Battle Is Fast

Eddie Huffman paved the way for a battle in New York when he won the decision over Floyd Johnson in ten rounds at Vernon last night. Huffman piled up a lot of points in the early rounds but became over-confident in the last few rounds and almost lost the decision when Johnson came back strong.

The Iowa got in his best work in the eighth round, when he floored Huffman. He followed up his lead in the ninth and there were plenty of misses flying through the round. Huffman was credited by ringside fans with the first, second, fourth, fifth sixth and seventh rounds. Johnson took the eighth and ninth, and the third and tenth were even.

Nick Newman defeated Harvey Perkins in the semi-final, a slow six-round affair. Alex Trambitas got the nod over Johnny Gerarden in the six-round special preliminary. Don Downey won a four-round decision over Jack Ketchell and Nick Antonio got the verdict over Teddy Adams in the four-round opening bout.

The Hollywood American Legion baseball team was a little too hard-hitting for the Hollywood Athletic club nine yesterday, and handed the latter squad a 10-to-4 beating in a Twilight league game. Lewis and Smith pitched for the winners. Martin and Yardley were the club's battery.

NEW YORK, April 29.—The International league takes the palm this week for minor league race upheavals. Jersey City gets most of the palm fronds, for this team, though lacking in the early advantages some of the other clubs had, and not reckoned upon as a pennant factor, plowed its way up at the expense of Syracuse and Toronto, and challenged Baltimore.

Jersey City's nearest neighbor, Newark, also went up in the fight, to the great joy of loyal Jersey fans. Jersey City made its climb on good pitching and despite the fact that it is almost the lowest batting organization in the circuit. Rochester's slump was unexpected, and a come-back is predicted.

Had Kansas City been able to get in the fight, the American association race would have been closer than a miser with a penny. Perhaps the Missourians will get back in a week or two. They need to do so to balance a race, which, like others of the American association type, is so close that it takes only one day's games to change the league perspective.

For a week has Indianapolis held its own, leading at the week-end by a half game. Minneapolis crawled up into fast company. Milwaukee is going a lot better. St. Paul and Columbus are holding their own. Toledo has improved, while Louisville has sagged a bit. But the changes don't signify much thus early when one reflects that two day's play could put the league leader in seventh place.

The Eastern league is going now out by Hartford nosing the others out by an inch and with Pittsfield trailing. Pittsfield does not always trail but the Eastern would be a better league if Pittsfield was up in the running.

It is too early to predict much about the Eastern, but there are some young ball players in the circuit who may inject surprises into the proceedings when they get under steam.

Atlanta is streaking ahead in the Southern association. Manager Nischoff took his men to Winter Park, Fla., for spring training and there ran into the same fine weather that the big leagues did, thus getting the jump in condition on his rivals.

In a way the Southern association race is better bunched than it was, but all the clubs in the circuit will have to watch this Atlanta team. Birmingham is looking up in the fight to the satisfaction of a good part of the south.

XV—High Blood Pressure
It has been only in the past few years that the public has heard of high blood pressure. This is because only recently have instruments been devised to compute easily the blood pressure. High blood pressure is a disease as old as man, but its far-reaching effects are just being recognized.

The big insurance companies have done much to increase our knowledge of this disease. By means of the blood pressure they can foretell with reasonable certainty the apparently healthy men who may drop dead or develop serious disease in the prime of life.

The blood is kept at a certain pressure at all times, at a pressure which moves the vital fluid at a rapid rate than the larger blood vessels, and which forces it through the smaller capillaries and even through the minute spaces between the individual cells. In the body the blood pressure is maintained, for the most part, by the big pumping station, the heart.

The blood pressure in people up to 20 years old should be between 100 and 120. Between the ages of twenty and forty it should not exceed 130. After the age of forty it should not increase more than one point added to 130, for each two years.

The big, robust man, overweight, overfed, and overstimulated, is usually the man in whom high-blood pressure occurs. As the celebrated Dr. Osler says, "High-blood pressure is found most often among the big, robust men who eat a good deal, smoke a good deal, and drink a good deal." Occasionally it occurs in thin, nervous persons. High-blood pressure rarely develops early in life. The pressure begins to rise between the age of thirty and forty, and has reached the excessive, often dangerous point between forty and fifty.

Whether the Finns knew or did not, the feeling around here seems to be that Mr. Wilson was not thinking loosely when he took it for granted that the two runners were in the confidence of their manager. Athletes who have managers usually are.

Mr. Wilson is now preparing an affidavit setting forth his deal.

JORDAN DEFEATED

RINGSIDE GOSSIP FAIR PLAY

Special Correspondent to The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.
NEW YORK, April 29.—Two New Yorkers who know fighters when they see them and witnessed the bout in Cleveland between Al Corbett and Edouard Mascart, European featherweight champion, affirm that if the American fighter develops a real wallop he will be the great featherweight of all time.

Right now he is qualified, they say, to stand up with the best of the present bunch. He is fast, clever, courageous and game and he was giving Mascart a good beating when he was fouled.

One low blow in a rally, even if it does a lot of damage, may be overlooked as accidental. Two are suspicious. But when three come in rapid succession, as was the case in the Mascart-Corbett bout, it is pretty difficult to explain on grounds other than that the offending fighter lost his head.

Mascart, say the writer's informant, is no champion in the sense that the majority of the other world's title holders are champions. He is not much of a boxer. He is really a fighter with a good punch in either hand.

Probably with a boy who was not shifty, who did not know how to take care of himself, Mascart would be likely to win by a knockout but he will find that the good American feathers are not holding their chins out for sleeping doses and that when he launches his hard ones he is leaving himself open in a way which full advantage will be taken.

Al Corbett was such a fighter and however good he may be the fact remains that he has yet to take his place among the top-liners in his class. Jerry Sachs, of Cleveland, is a clever enough manager to put him where he belongs. This can be done by skillful coaching in the delivering of punches and not too great haste in rushing him against the nation's best, while he is perfecting himself.

The Optimist No. 1 team took three games from the Optimist No. 2 team in the opening match of the Service Club league last night. There will be no Service Club league match to night on account of the Elstaddford, but a double-header will be rolled tomorrow night.

In the City league match, the Carlocks lost to the Calla Lilly team, after winning the first game by over 200 margin. Rhodir of the winners rolled 236 for high game. The Optimists—one

SPORT CHATTER

By C. C. MARSHALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Sunday was a great day for the fighting men—Hindenburg was elected President of the German Republic, Jack Dempsey "stopped" the ball game when he made his appearance in a ringside seat at the clash here between the Giants and the Phillies and General Pershing received an ovation when he unexpectedly appeared on the stage as one of the performers in the Lamb's Gambol.

Germany said it with votes by making the demonstration for General Hindenburg more lasting, but New York wasn't so backward either about honoring the fighting heroes who were its guests for the day.

Some 40,000 people came to the ball game and remained to cheer Dempsey who bore his honors with an easy grace, waving his good right hand in a gesture of deprecation toward the enthusiastic multitude. If he has imagination he must have had more mind for the imaginary X which marked the spot out around second base where he once landed on his ear, assisted none too gently by one Luis Angel Firpo. But to all outward appearance he was dividing his attention between his pretty new wife who sat at his right and the ice cream cone which he held gracefully poised in his left.

Pershing an Actor
As for General Pershing, he really had no idea of crowding any of the actors out of the spotlight but Will Rogers didn't do him such a bad turn when he dragged him out of the wings and told him to go to it. The Lambs is a club made up of male persons in the theatrical profession and once every year they get up a Sunday night show of their own to pay off the indebtedness on their club house, which hangs on like the mortgage on the old homestead. They must have owed more than usual this year because they chartered the Metropolitan Opera House and charged as high as $1.00 a seat—and got it. The total receipts are said to have been in the neighborhood of $72,000.

The audience had seen and heard quite a lot of talent when Rogers suddenly reached his arm through the front curtain and dragged out the diffident general, diffident probably because he was in evening clothes and not in uniform. Anyway the crowd stood on its feet and roared while the orchestra crashed into the Star Spangled Banner and played it through almost correctly. It was all very impressive and reminiscent of war times. The general succeeded in making his exit without having to attempt much of a speech but his triumph was none the less complete.

HOME RUNS FAIL

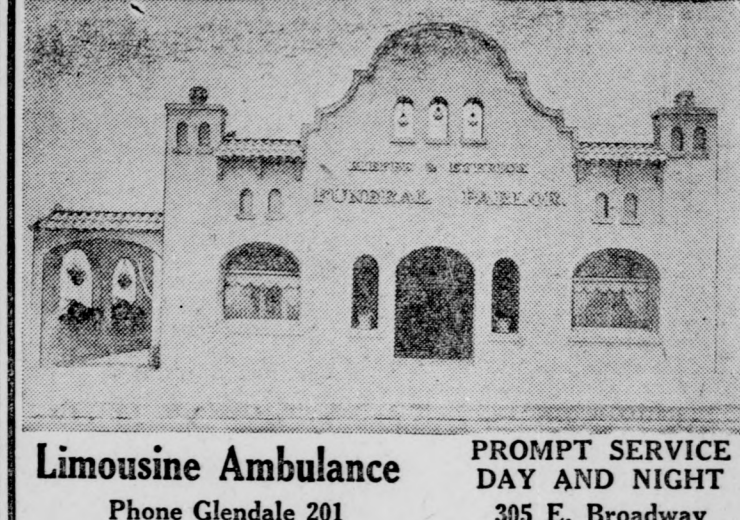

Home runs by Muesel and Snyder were wasted on the desert air when Barnes collapsed in the seventh and the Phillies pounded their way to a 7 to 5 decision over the Giants.

And again, were you ever waited on by a Cantonese Chinaman? If not you have not yet lived. Talk about attention! They exude it. They stick to one like a shadow not waiting to be told your wants but oftentimes anticipating them.

Exhibit A: We are honored with the presence of the ship's chief officer at our table. He has his own personal Cantonese servant, a young, thin-faced chap, with a bland, child-like expression. Yesterday at dinner, the chief told him to "eliminate" the salad from his dinner course. Sing Be nodded, and disappeared in the direction of the serving pantry, to return shortly bearing aloft the chief's salad accompanied by a long pip glass filled with "flonade." Such was his Chinese interpretation of an order to "eliminate" the salad. Dog-like fidelity, that's what it is, and I like it, only see to it that you make your meaning clear when dealing with one of these lads or heaven knows what the answer will be.

Fellow Travelers
Now as to our fellow travelers: Well, there is a solemn looking judge, and his new bride of fifty summers--never mind the winters; a professor of "ologies from one of the western universities; a Shanghai merchant returning from his first visit to the United States; an insurance man just changing his base of operations from Shanghai to Singapore; a Russian, unable to speak a word of English but one of the most industrious men, as manifested in his application to his writing and reference books, that it has ever been my good fortune to meet, and giving every indication of the scholar and gentleman; a former American citizen, now in the employ of the customs service of the Chinese republic; a fire commissioner from San Francisco, a lady missionary returning to her station in Manila, and, oh yes! There is also the woman whose husband (so one of the ship's officers informs me, confidentially, of course) got his start peddling safety razor blades along the wharves of Cebu, or along the wharves of Manila, or in some of the other outlandish places, and who now owns one of the largest stores, or dance-halls, or something of that sort, there, and who shows her influence by calling the ship's officers by their given names and loudly insists that she's "a perfect lady," and ready to prove it should the occasion arise.

Of course there are other women aboard, although the somewhat immediate presence of my wife and daughter precludes the possibility of close cultivation or them on my part. Some of them sit around and smoke their cigarettes with the men, and others, again, are just like mother and her type. In the evening we dance out on the deck aft, or else we vary the entertainment by listening to learned dissertations on the stars by a gentleman who gets his right stars in the wrong constellations, etc., but whose intentions, I am convinced, are entirely honorable.

Day In Honolulu
Last Saturday we spent in Honolulu. It was somewhat misty from the night's rain, and still spluttering. Some of them sat around and smoke their cigarettes with the men, and others, again, are just like mother and her type. In the evening we dance out on the deck aft, or else we vary the entertainment by listening to learned dissertations on the stars by a gentleman who gets his right stars in the wrong constellations, etc., but whose intentions, I am convinced, are entirely honorable.

A sharp rift in the hills 1,200 feet above the level of the sea, disclosed a view of both sides of this strange, sea-girt isle. By a swift about-face our driver barely averted the loss of his auto top as the 80 mile gale from the other side of the island tore in upon us, flinging back the mists that had come creeping up from our side of the island in long swirling columns. We run around Diamond Head, luncheon at the Mauna Hotel, and a dip in the bay at famous Waikiki, and our glorious day was ended.

That Permanent Wave
Much more might be written about Hawaii, particularly of the spectacular development of the pineapple industry which bids fair to become the leading pursuit of the island, superseding the well-established sugar cane; but happening to glance at some of the statistics I noted that Captain Cook was killed there some time ago for having discovered the islands, so that I felt satisfied to "leave well enough alone" and it was with considerable relief that I saw our ship get safely off again into mid-ocean.

The lady from Amarillo, Texas, who sits at our table, has learned that she could have got her permanent wave for only $15 at another shop in Los Angeles. Isn't it the limit, the way they hold up us women?

BIG LUMBER LOTS PASS BY PANAMA

Canal Handles Over Billion Board Feet In Last Three Months

By J. C. ROYLE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925
NEW YORK, April 29.--In the last 3 months 1,500,000,000 board feet of lumber have arrived at New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Providence, Baltimore and other Atlantic ports by way of the Panama Canal, according to representatives here of Pacific Coast Lumber firms. It took about 400 shiploads to convey this enormous quantity. Four years ago the lumber movement through the canal was almost negligible.

The freight rate on lumber from Pacific to Atlantic was around $15 a thousand feet. Eastern and Southern lumber men since they have found it paid to ship lumber 6,000 miles to their own markets, have come to the conclusion that reforestation is worth while. Western lumbermen also have made up their minds that they are not going to be left in a position where they cannot supply the demand and likewise turning to reforestation of their forests. In consequence lumbermen everywhere are taking a keen interest in the topics raised by celebration of the American Forest Week which began Monday.

The celebration of the week is for the purpose of devising means for care and improvement of forests, tree planting, installation of economies in preparation and use of woods and perpetual reforestation of timber lands.

Annual Freight Bills
The annual national freight bill for lumber is now above $300,000,000. Most of this cost is due to the long distance which separates producing districts and consuming centers. The average haul here is fully 700 miles and will exceed 1,000 in the next five years.

Two-thirds of the lumber consumption is east of the Missouri and north of the Ohio Rivers, while two-thirds of production is south and west of that area. There is little virgin timber left in the north and east, yet there are 100,000,000 acres of land there which will not grow anything else. Strong efforts are being and will be made to correct that condition. One reason for this situation is that there has been no precedent for reforestation, lumbermen having treated forests as practically inexhaustible. Forest fires have not been adequately guarded against. Still another reason has been excessive taxation on replanted lands. In spite of these the total amount of timber reproduction has been great although it is spotted.

New Production
New York, Pennsylvania and other New England states, considered practically cut out 30 years ago, are producing over a billion feet a year and now have stands aggregating 100,000,000,000 feet. Farmers are getting $500 an acre for second growth pine land. Within 20 years it is believed the annual timber cut will be doubled in those states.

Foresters predict that the new growth of forest material will bring producing and consuming centers closer together in the next 20 years. In the west forest investments are being sought with especial regard to their reliability and safety based on reforestation programs. A great California timber owner whose wealth is enormous says his sons will make more from his timber holdings than he has made in his lifetime.

Forest Preservation
The future of the American industrial world is closely tied up with preservation and reservation of forests. No raw material is more important than wood. The United States has 470,000,000 acres that can grow timber abundantly and other products only scantily. Properly cared for, this now idling empire can perpetually yield more timber than has ever been cut off it. The lumber bill of the nation and the freight bill for transporting that lumber are big factors in housing and living costs and the questions which may be worked out this week in preservation and new production of trees have a bearing on every citizen and business man.

Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, chairman of the committee of citizens appointed by President Coolidge to promote the reforestation movement, points out that the best results will come primarily from legislation making it possible for private owners to grow timber at a profit. State legislation, he says, should be designed partly with a view to aiding and co-operating with the private owners to make the undertaking yield an adequate return.

WRITER REBUKES DICTIONARY PLAN

H. L. Mencken Dislikes Idea
Of Enlisting Englishman
To Edit Edition

By O. L. SCOTT
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.
CHICAGO, April 29.--Charges by a somewhat vigorous American writer that the University of Chicago was trying to shove down native American throats an English language by placing an eminent British philologist in charge of preparation of its American language dictionary, has brought a swift retort from the midway institution.

The university department of English through Professor John Matthews Manley, its director, has called Professor William A. Craigie, from Oxford University to supervise preparation of its first coming dictionary of American English.

The thought of the English undertaking such a job caused H. L. Mencken to declare that the pedagogues who refresh the English languages and its branches among us regard it as their duty to enforce relentlessly the rules of a tongue that exists only in books, and that the overwhelming majority of Americans never speak, seldom hear and often cannot even understand.

Mencken Rebutted
This proved a bit too much for the University of Chicago department of English, which is trying to give this country its first really native dictionary.

Idea of Plan
Since the university announced its plans to ferret out the explanation of American language it has seen an enthusiastic response, except the one cutting jab at the project. The American dialect society has placed itself behind the plan and funds are now being sought for a research assistant and two fellows to run down elusive American words. It's to be an American project, directed by one with the greatest background in English.

As Professor Manley explained to the writer, "the objective of the American dictionary is to present in detail a history of the English language in American, showing the contributions which have been made to the development of the language in literary English."
